

A deathbed story of forgiveness told by Abe Lincoln

- Teshuvah--Can we let bygones be bygones! (Uploaded by Doniel Kramer)

A deathbed story of forgiveness told by Abe Lincoln

Abraham Lincoln was fond of telling a story about Farmer Brown who was on his deathbed. His lifelong enemy came to visit him and wish him a miraculous recovery. Brown weakly shook his hand and said, "Remember if by chance I survive, the old grudge still stands." •

May we celebrate the New Year by shutting the door on the weighty grievances and grudges that prevent us from moving forward toward a better year.
(Rabbi Mordechai Kamenetzsky)